547 SW Maine Farmers in ASC Practices

Farmers in four southwestern Maine counties are planning on extensive use of soil fertilizing materials in connection with practices of the Agricultural Conservation Program. This was disclosed by County Committeemen of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Department at the annual district conference of representatives of the U. S. Department of Agriculture just held at South Paris.

The committeemen reported that a total of 4247 tons of lime, and 1,179 tons of other soil improvement materials, such as 8-16-16, 0-20-20, and superphosphate had been approved for 347 farms already enrolled in the 1955 ACP. Chairmen of the County Committee in making the report to Robert S. Pike, chairman of the State ASC Committee, who presided at the meeting, stated that by the end of the second enrollment period on April 15 most of the programs funds allotted to the counties for 1955 would be taken up.

Following the progress report on the 1955 program, the delegation discussed practice recommendations for 1956. Mr. Pike stated that a total of 28 different conservation practices were recommended for the 1956 ACP program.

CAREER WEEK APRIL 3-9

April 3 to 9 has been designated Maine Career Week for Maine for 1955. The WEEK, which is sponsored annually by the Maine State Chamber of Commerce with the cooperation of local chambers of commerce throughout the state is a cooperative business effort to assist school officials in providing career guidance to pupils in the public schools.

Career Week was first organized six years ago, and has brought hundreds of business men into the schools to aid pupils in preparing for future employment. An early development of the career program was the Future Apprentices Competition which has been a regular event during the special week each year. The Apprentices program has attracted entrants from virtually every qualified high school in Maine and offers job opportunities and awards to participants.

The assistance of businessmen during the Career Week program is made possible through the joint efforts of the State Department of Education, the State Chamber of Commerce, and special arrangements made by local chambers of commerce with educators in their communities.

The entire state-wide program, according to the State Chamber is the outgrowth of a desire to provide opportunities in Maine for Maine youth, and since it touches on all types of business a great many people can take an active part in the effort.

COMMENTS FROM THE OFFICE OF THE TOWN MANAGER

Our state audit is being conducted at this time by Douglas Strand of Portland. This is the first visit Mr. Strand has made to Bethel as auditor. We appreciate his quiet and gentlemanly manner of doing his work.

Recent visitors at the office include Mr. Shepherd of the State Tax assessors office, Miss Cormier of the Auburn welfare office and Mr. Whitney, State general relief officer.

Initial steps have already been taken to get in touch with the mapping and valuation concerns in view of the recent town vote for revaluation.

One Maine farmer has built a pole-type, above-ground stack horizontal silo. It measures 15 by 45 feet and is 15 feet high. This gives a capacity of 250 tons of grass silage. Village Decides No Night Police; Cut Appropriations Citizens of the Bethel Village Corporation entrusted the conduct of the coming year's business to a group of from 13 to 21 voters at the annual meeting held Monday evening at the Community Room. With D. Grover Brooks serving as moderator, all articles in the warrant were given liberal consideration in a little more than an hour's time.

Two changes in elected officers were made: Clifford Hillier succeeded Thomas Brown as assessor, and Stuart Cross becoming park commissioner to replace Elmer Allen. Appropriations followed the recommendations made by first assessor Sam T. Smith.

Balances remaining in several accounts were considered sufficient for another year's operations and were accordingly reappropriated. These amounts are: building account, $169.39; parks and trees, $358.59; marking streets, $100.02. Also reappropriated was $56.00 for street lighting.

The close decision of the evening was made in the article relating to employment of a night police officer. A motion to pass over the article was carried by a 6-5 score. Consequently only $600.00 was raised under the following article for the officer's pay.

Other articles passed over included the appropriation for new fire equipment or hose and increasing street lighting from 600 to 1000 lumens units.

All officers chosen at the meeting were elected without contest on one ballot cast by the clerk or moderator.

Officers:

Assessors: Sam T. Smith, Ernest A. Mundt, Clifford Hillier.

Clerk and Treasurer: Charles J. Freeman.

Tax Collector: O. T. Rozelle. Rate 1 1/2%.

Park Commissioners: Charles J. Freeman, Frank A. Hunt, Stuart Cross.

Fire Engineers: Robert M. Blake, Addison C. Saunders, O. Walter Tinkler.

Fire department 1,800.00
Use of hydrants 1,150.00
Miscellaneous 350.00

A Backward Step!

The good citizens who do not vote offered a fine example of their power at the annual meeting of the Bethel Village Corporation Monday evening. We have in mind particularly the action in regard to continuing the employment of a night police officer. Of the entire population of the village area only 11 people were interested enough to show their opinion, six of whom chose to "pass over the article."

For more than 25 years, since there has been any interest in local night police protection, the Citizen has supported the project although there have been a few long lapses in such service. We believe that any protection at all is much better than none, and there have been wide variations in the services rendered. With few if any exceptions the officers employed have performed the duties asked by the assessors or expected by the taxpayers.

It is our opinion that a dozen officers would be unable to prevent all mischief or law-breaking; that one man on duty can and has done much to promote safety and protection of persons and property; that knowledge of the employment has a real effect in minimizing the varied acts of hoodlums which are latent in even the best communities.

The successful performance of a policeman's duties is taken for granted and is likely to go without much thought or appreciation during the long periods when all goes smoothly. Little services rendered to inhabitants or travelers are needed and worthwhile. The value of a frequent inspection of the village is generally admitted to be a good safeguard against fires and for the good of the general public.

Before the community suffers the ill effects which may occur as a result of Monday night's action, it is our hope that interest may be aroused toward continuing or resuming this needed function of government.

Economic Highlights

Happenings That Affect the Future of Every Individual — National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare. If yours is an average American family it costs you the neat sum of $100 a year just to pay your share of the paperwork done by the federal government.

That is one of the startling facts produced in a newly-published Hoover Commission report, which goes into the paperwork problems in detail and makes certain recommendations for reorganization and reform.

Everyone who has served in one of the armed forces has had personal experience with the extent and complexity of government record keeping and other paperwork. It has been the subject of innumerable jokes and anecdotes. But it's no laughing matter when considered in the light of its cost in time, effort and money. And while this is a problem of some magnitude in industry as well, it seems that it has reached its most acute and wasteful form in the huge federal establishment.

As a result of a prior Hoover Commission study, changes were made in methods of handling government records that have saved nearly $35,000,000 in a single year. But that notable effort has touched only a relatively small portion of the government's paperwork activity. According to this new report, the government creates and handles some 25,000,000,000 pieces of paper each year, not counting that used in manuals, pamphlets, and the like. This requires the services of more than 700,000 full-time employees. And it costs $4,000,000,000 a year—which, by way of comparison, is about equal to the whole federal budget prior to 22 years ago!

The paperwork takes various forms. Some 18,000,000,000 of the sheets are printed or mimeographed. More than 1,000,000,000 are individual letters—and to write these costs $1,000,000,000 or a dollar each. The government has hundreds of millions of dollars invested in office equipment, and office space for the paperwork employees costs $180,000,000 annually. There are more than 21,000,000 cubic feet of federal agency records—which, the report observes, are enough to fill seven buildings the size of the gigantic Pentagon.

The increase in paperwork came, of course, with the enormous growth of the government in recent years. And, in some instances at least, the paperwork grew faster. In 1912 writing of individual letters per government employee totaled 65; now it totals about 622 a year. In addition to the cost in money, the volume of paperwork imposed upon top federal employees interferes with their basic responsibilities. The report finds that this paperwork, along with various laws and regulations, making these positions far more difficult than those of the top officers of large corporations.

At the end of the report makes a number of specific suggestions for cutting down on the paperwork and effecting other allied reforms. It estimates that savings could be made as follows: in correspondence, $75,000,000; in forms, $50,000,000; in reports, $50,000,000; in record keeping, $50,000,000; in mail handling, $30,000,000. That adds up to $255,000,000, which could be saved the taxpayers in this one field of government activity alone. The report urges that early action be taken.

THE LOW DOWN FROM HICKORY GROVE

"Pool things" I have heard is the topic and what is foolishness or fool to what keeps an editor on his toes what to print makes his dilemma chronic. Some samples. Let little Fanny and little Jasper develop in their own minds even if it is rubbing honey into the divan upholstery. Fred, you know. And juvenile delinquency grows as does the proverbial green bay tree. And another to worry you is "Communism develops and grows via ignorance." And Mr. Ed knows that the left handed man or dame with several colons uses words with more syllables that does half the people or even his own self.

"Women will clean up politics" translates the morning sun—awaken the landscape. Remember! And "lets vote bonds for a light plant or a water works and take the profit our own selves." Bonds grand! And with such a tax exempt project on the town's hands, the title is not on the officers to pay the fatter the citizenry sales one more useless headline per each paper.

Editors have their daily problems but you don't feel 'em too often. Like the 2 street newspapers calling their hunch alongside the curb. Gladly says to Dugan, he says, Dugan, that Iy "tender" and "bender" me must think I am a big hunk of old government or something. Well, says Dugan, you know. He says, Gladly, it is hard to fool a fly.

Yours with the low down,

IT'S UP TO YOU

by
Howard E. Kershner, L.H.D.

Last year Johnny was a naughty boy in school. His teacher said he was a behavior problem and that he started fights all the time. She said he did everything wrong and that he was not very bright. His grades were poor and his report card was a blue print of poor achievement, lack of cooperation, poor deportment and general disinterest.

This year he went to a new school and, of course, to a new teacher. Immediately he became a well behaved child and anxious to please. He became studious, happy and generally a model of cooperation. He has become a storehouse of information learned at school and he has a perfect text paper almost every day.

The secret of the change came to light when he said, "Mommy, my teacher likes me. I think she is beautiful." Actually, she is rather plain Jane with a powerfully winning personality. "You know, Mommy," he continued, "she isn't like my teacher last year. My teacher last year told me on the first day of school that she didn't like me. She wasn't pretty at all. I hated her! She was quite attractive, but did not understand children's psychology."

Being liked is very important to children. In fact, it is important to everyone. When we are appreciated, we do good work. We respond to love. We behave well when we are respected and encouraged.

It is a privilege to live in a land where people are recognized as individuals and where individual initiative is encouraged. It is so wonderful to know that we are liked and that we are not treated like so many puppets on a string, nor like animals handled on an identical pattern of scheduled feeding.

America was founded on a basis of individual abilities, interests, qualities and souls. God made no two people exactly alike. Let us pray for a future that will permit individuals to continue expressing their initiative. Let us pray that we may be more worthy to be loved by other individuals so that we may lead the world toward a recognition of liberty and freedom for all.

ACROSS the DESK

Idea from other editors

From the Loudonville Times, Loudonville, Ohio: An amusing, and also significant, commentary on the kind of service we expect from service stations is found in a sign a New England operator posted when he took a vacation.

"We are closing up for two weeks. The services we usually provide may be had at the following places: 1. General Information—from the cop on the beat. 2. Cokes—at corner drugstore. 3. Rest Rooms—at home. 4. Change—a bank across the street. 5. Petty Loan—a bank across the street. 6. Charley—at County farm. 7. Matches—from a passerby. 8. Daily Newspapers—from newsboy. 9. Loading—all the street.

Actually—all humorous exaggerations to one side—the typical American service station knows no superiors and few equals. It is a symbol of our highly competitive life industry in particular—and our free system of doing things in general. The contrast with the service stations in most other countries is striking.

From the Wildwood Independent Record, Wildwood, New Jersey: "To live in a town or city, have many people know and respect you, to feel that happiness of spirit and serenity of mind that only the consciousness of well-doing can bring . . . that is the true life. Then to pass from this world knowing that you have helped build your community and make it better for this generation and those to come . . . there must be happiness even in death for such men.

From the Whiteside County News, Morrison, Illinois: This story has been told in various forms, but it bears the same logic in whatever manner it is applied. It is about the city man who bought a farm. When he went out to look at the line fence, which had been the source of much quarreling, the neighboring farmer said, "That fence is a full foot over on my side."

"Very well," said the new owner, "we will set the fence two feet over on my side." "Oh, but that is more than I claim," stammered the surprised farmer. "Never mind about that; I would much rather have peace with my neighbor than two feet of earth," said the man. "That's surely fine of you, sir," replied the farmer, "but I couldn't let you do a thing like that. That fence just won't be moved at all." The next time you have a dispute about rights, surprise your adversary by giving him more than he asks, and realize the joy of turning.

AND I QUOTE

Manassett, Ohio, News-Journal: "A salutary New York law, passed last year, requires all state officials with an interest of $10,000 or more in a state-regulated business to file this information with the secretary of state. . . . Legislators sometimes do have a financial interest in matters coming before them, and in some cases unfortunately fail to reveal the fact. It is no mere desire to snoop that gives this information public interest."

West Point, Miss., Daily Times Leader: "Any strong nation of free workers can survive the ordeal of growing broke, and can even come back stronger than ever when the tide of fortune again turns its way. But paste this in your hat: No country is strong enough to CHARLES M. SCHWAB was one of the greatest industrialists America has ever produced—and she has produced many. What made him great? You decide after reading something I wrote about him in this column years ago. I believe you will agree with me that it is good enough to use a second time.

The men in one of the mills of the big steel company were not producing as much as they could. Mr. Schwab spoke to the manager:

"How is it that a man as capable as you are can't get higher production?" "I can't say," said the manager. "I've coaxed those men; I've pushed them; I've sworn at them, and I've threatened them. But nothing succeeds." Mr. Schwab picked up a piece of chalk and marked on the floor a big figure 6.

It was almost time for the night shift to come on. When they did their curiosity was aroused by the figure.

"The Big Boss was here today," explained a man. "He asked how many heats we made and when I told him six, he wrote it on the floor."

The next morning Mr. Schwab again had a look around. The figure he had chalked down was gone and a figure "7" was there. That was the number of heats the night shift made.

Well, to shorten this story, those two shifts, night and day, began competing with each other. It wasn't long before this mill was turning out more work than any other in the plant.

make a comeback when the people lose their sense of personal responsibility. . . . And their fundamental respect for the system that underlies all economic progress—the private property system—under which all men have the same opportunity. . . .

"Management ability and judgment would be crippled by government controls, government domination of business, if the opponents of our business system had their way. And employees, in particular, are being told that all we need for prosperity is plenty of "purchasing power" even if it is inflationary printing-press money—and that production and the growth of plant and equipment will take care of themselves."—Calais (Me.) Advertiser.

"The first duty of the American businessman is not to his company but to his country, because there will be no American system of business as we have known it unless our country continues strong and vital, and measures up to its awesome responsibility in the world."—Clarence B. Randall, Board Chairman, Inland Steel Company.

SCANNING THE NEWS

THERE is every indication that the present probe by the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy into the hows and whys of the Atomic Energy Commission's handling of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 and the application of atomic energy to private business may mushroom into a full-scale investigation as a result of which some heads may roll.

Even to the uninformed in the atomic energy field, the country and the rapid development of atomic energy for peacetime purposes in industry, medicine and agriculture are being hurt because: There is no top-grade industrialist on the Commission; the Commission is deadlocked at present due to dissension; it's able chairman, Lewis L. Strauss, is attempting to play the role of dictator on the Commission, while the law makes each commissioner equal; the Commission is being used as a political football and a power broker in the fight between public vs private power, when such an issue has no place on the Commission's agenda. All told, the country's most important independent government agency, in charge of its most important national security measures, is floundering along with three members when there should be five, two of the three members are at sword's point and the third tries to play he's not there.

What is happening is that important people, who have been trained by years of service with the Commission are leaving almost daily.

The Joint Committee on Atomic Energy of the Congress, under the new Act has almost life and death power over the Commission. Not only must all legislation start with the committee, but the committee must pass on all requests for appropriations needed by the Commission, and under the new Act, the Commission cannot make expenditures of money as it did under the 1946 McMahon Act.

Each expenditure must be a separately approved appropriation. And yet when the Joint Committee called upon the Commission to either cancel the much discussed Dixon-Yates contract, or turn it over to some other federal agency, Chairman Strauss defied the committee and refused to cancel.

Which means that in all likelihood the Commission will not get the appropriations with which to carry out the contract.

Senator Clinton Anderson (D-N.M.) who succeeded Congressman W. Sterling Cole, (R-N.Y.) as chairman of the Joint Committee, has declared that there must be some sort of unity and cohesion reestablished within the Atomic Energy Commission. Businessmen are not complimentary in their relations with the Commission. Walter L. Ciser, president of Detroit Edison Company, which spearheads a multi-million dollar group of companies seeking to invest in an atomic reactor for electric generating facilities, is testimony before the committee.

warned that actions of the Commission are too weak; are too little and too late in seeking to wean private industry to play the part they should play in the development of atomic energy for peacetime purposes.

TODAY'S Meditation

The Upper Room
THE WORLD'S MOST WIDELY USED DEVOTIONAL GUIDE

Thursday, March 17
Read I Corinthians 13:1-13.
God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation also make a way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it. (I Corinthians 10:13).

ONE winter night many years ago, I had an appointment to meet one of our missionaries who was on furlough. It was snowing. When the missionary stepped out of the carriage, his luggage opened and a great number of small belongings fell into the snow. I was astonished to see the missionary's calm reaction to the disturbing incident. "It is well," he said, "that it did not happen when I walked the landing plank from the steamer." His self-discipline was very impressive to my young heart. How could he be so unafraid? Why did he not burst out in exclamations, even in anger? Was he unconcerned about his property? Really he did have a reaction. His reaction was based on the fact that he had for many years gone to the school of God. There he had learned to master his temper, to discipline himself. So it was that God, who is faithful, did not let this missionary be worried, but made him always a way to escape.

Prayer

Our Father, Thou hast begun a good work in us. Show us this day Thy way, instill in us Thy spirit, that we may be led to Christ. Grant us joy of heart as we submit ourselves to disciplined living. We pray in the name of Christ. Amen.

Thought For The Day

In that Christ Himself has suffered, being tempted, He is able to help us who are tempted. Vih. Wangvist (Sweden)

NEARLY 100,000 FARMERS PURCHASED FROM EASTERN STATES IN 1954

Almost 100,000 northeastern farmers purchased $85,947,778 worth of farm production supplies through Eastern States Farmers' Exchange in 1954 according to Edmund C. Smith, Bethel. SUNDAY'S SERMON

Rev. Robert H. Harper
Christian Living (Temperance).
Lesson for March 20: Colossians 3: 5-10; 1 Timothy 4: 12; 1 John 2: 1-6.
Golden Text: 1 Timothy 4: 12.

Christian living includes temperance because a man must get hold of a higher power to cleanse his life if he would attain unto the highest of all mastery—self-control. Thus the Colossian Christians were exhorted, by the grace of God won through faith, to put away fornication, uncleanness, passion, evil desire, and covetousness, things through which comes the wrath of God upon the sons of disobedience. And through faith they were to put on the new man as he is in Christ Jesus.

Timothy was not to be hesitant because of his youth, and was to be a good example unto the believers in his manner of life, in love, faith, and purity. It is evident that such manner of life at the present time would be a worthy example unto all and a powerful influence for good.
John assures Christians that they have an Advocate with the Father, even Jesus Christ, and that he is the propitiation for their sins and for those of the whole world. If a man sins, he can in true repentance find restoration to God's favor. And he who loves Jesus will keep his commandments, and the love of God in him will be perfected. So let us strive after that self-control that will bring us to happiness and joy.

THE DIFFERENCE between good printing and better printing is not great. In fact it may be slight. There are many factors involved that may seem of little consequence to many users of printed matter.
Conscientious workmanship is always important. The proposed purposes of the product must be considered. Quality of materials, selection of type faces, economy of production, are a few of the points essential for the customer's satisfaction.
Our experience in printing is offered to our customers as a desirable ingredient of every product of our printing office.

Conservation Farming In Oxford County

by Douglas L. Martin
Soil Conservation Service

The Board of Supervisors of the Oxford County Soil Conservation District met last week at the home of Laurence Marston for their regular monthly meeting. Philip G. Andrews, Fryeburg; Bertrand Buck, Buckfield; and Warren Abbott of Rumford were other members of the board present.

The operating budget for the year was completed and one item of particular interest was one for the purchase of some young seedling trees from the State Nursery in Orono. These young trees will be used to plant a portion of the District's lot in Brownfield. This is an area that was burned over during the large fire in the fall of 1947. This land was given to the District by the Brooks family of Brownfield. As many of you know there are many thousands of acres of this burned-over land in the Brownfield area. It is only growing scrub oak and other poor quality trees and it left to nature will be valueless for many, many years.

The Supervisors are interested to see if the District-owned tree planter can be successfully used in this area. Some clearing will no doubt be necessary prior to planting. The Supervisors hope that by trying this on a limited scale that they may be able to gather some information on the costs of planting under the conditions that exist over a large portion of the Brownfield burn area.

The Supervisors fully realize that there are many areas that could never be planted but they do feel that it is worth the time and money to do a little experimenting. Another important budget item was one for the purchase of a soil eroder. This is needed to cut pieces of sod that can be placed in gullies, waterways, and other areas where it has been impossible to establish a satisfactory sod by seeding. Be sure to watch your fields as the snow begins to melt and see if maybe you could have used a cover crop on some parts of your land.

I was in Bethel last week and talked with Herbert Lyon who plans to start setting out an apple orchard this spring. In addition to needing a pond for a good water supply Mr. Lyon also is interested in setting out this orchard on the contour, or level.

His land is located on what they call the Grover Hill Road and most of the fields are quite steep. Contour, or level planting, is aimed at overcoming several common problems that face the average apple grower. Probably the greatest advantage is in the case of spraying, where very heavy equipment is involved. In the case of Mr. Lyon, his water supply will be located above his orchard and, therefore, all hauling with a full spray tank will be down hill, or on the level. This will offer a considerable saving in fuel costs plus a saving of wear and tear on the tractor. In addition the rats formed by the heavy spraying equipment in wet weather will not present the erosion problem that it would on up and down hill spraying.

Another important advantage is Laying out an orchard in this manner is that proper consideration can be given to the needs of an adequate drainage system. Often times diversion ditches are needed to divert excess runoff water away from the orchard fields. The drainage is also often needed on orchards and the layout of both these types of drainage systems are very much easier on contour planted orchards.

An apple orchard is certainly a long-term proposition and considerable thought should be given to the need of an adequate drainage system and the layout of trees for ease of spraying and harvest before a single tree is planted. Our County Agent, Frank Hagen, recommends a tree spacing of 40 feet by 40 feet, and this would require about 25 trees per acre.

Any of you folks that are interested in setting out orchards and would like assistance in establishing a complete drainage system and contour layout, should contact the Soil Conservation Service office at South Paris.

V. A. NEWS LETTER

Maine veterans who are receiving a $66.15 or $78.75 monthly pension for non-service-connected disability, and who now need the regular aid and attendance of another person, may be entitled to an additional award to increase their pension to $135.45, according to M. L. Stoddard, Manager of the Veterans Administration Center, Togus.

Veterans so stricken should apply to VA for the "aid and attendance" benefit, as VA does not automatically review pension cases now on its rolls to determine if they qualify for the added award. Stoddard said. The effective date of the "aid and attendance" award is the date the claim is filed.

Pensions are payable to war veterans, subject to certain income limitations, who become permanently and totally disabled from causes not due to service. The veteran must have served at least 90 days, unless discharged sooner for a line-of-duty disability, and must have a discharge other than dishonorable.

The basic pension rate is $66.15 a month, which is increased to $78.75 a month after ten years of continuous receipt or when the veteran reaches age 65.

The "aid and attendance" rate of $135.45 will not be paid during periods when the veteran is being hospitalized by the VA or furnished domiciliary care by VA.

Questions and Answers—
Q—I am blind and must go to a VA hospital for care. Will my "aid and attendance" award be taken away while I'm in the hospital.

A—No. Your disability is one of the few exceptions; others are veterans with transverse myelitis, or Hansen's disease, or those who are paraplegics.

Promise of Spring Today is promise of the spring With rocks and trees a-dripping. Old king winter's limbs are numb, His fingers start to shivering.

Not many weeks of cold and snow Are left, and this the reason, Old winter's rule is near its end, 'Tis soon the springtime season.

The snow will melt and disappear. The streams will race and tumble. The wild birds will return and sing To make us glad and humble.

For if God loves these little birds And guides them spring and fall, He'll guide his children whom he loves.

If they but heed his call, "Come unto me," the Master said "And lay your burden down. Believe in me and ye shall find Thy treasure and thy crown." V. L. S.

"THE TRUTH ABOUT PARCEL POST"—RESULT OF STUDY BY RAILWAY EXPRESS AGENCY

A comprehensive 26-page report, entitled "The Truth About Parcel Post," which asserts that the government's transportation service has been "abused for the private profit of a few—at enormous loss to the American public," has been released by Railway Express Agency.

The report claims that if the government is pressured into handling freight-size packages between large cities, it would be contrary to present accelerated efforts to get government out of business. On January 23rd, U. S. Budget Director Rowland Hughes, in the furtherance of this policy, directed Federal agencies to review their commercial and industrial activities, with a view toward discontinuing them.

The Railway Express booklet also shows that fourth-class, parcel post mail has accumulated a deficit of $12 billion since 1926, and that in the past nine years alone, through the 1954 fiscal year, the reported deficit amounted to $480 million.

A postal freight bill (H. R. 731) that would increase size and weight limit on parcel post moving between large cities and towns was introduced on behalf of the interests of certain shippers at the recent opening of Congress by Rep. Joel T. Brayhill (R. Va.). It is claimed that taxpayers and thousands of private carriers and their employees, including Railway Express, would be adversely affected by unfair government competition which would result from the bill.

In a foreword, A. L. Hammell, president of Railway Express, says that until Congress acted in 1931, certain commercial shippers had become accustomed over the years to the "special privilege" of having the taxpayer underwrite a large portion of their transportation costs through below-cost parcel post rates.

"Eventually this abuse became so flagrant," Mr. Hammell says, "that the 62nd Congress passed corrective legislation in the public Law 190 that withdrew some of the special privileges which had benefited these commercial interests for so long. Beginning January 1, 1933, it no longer was possible for them to send large, heavy freight-type packages between first-class post offices. Competition with private carriers was partially removed and a source of great deficit was checked."

Mr. Hammell claims that these same relatively few companies, most of whom sell merchandise by mail, want a return of the special privileges taken away from them by this legislation. "If they succeed," warns Mr. Hammell, "it means larger increase in the volume of freight business handled by the Post Office Department—and an even greater staggering annual loss to the public. And despite their claims to the contrary, these groups have protested every proposal to make parcel post a self-sustaining operation."

The study traces the history of parcel post from its start in 1915 as a small parcel-carrying service through the years when the size and weight limits were increased by administrative action of the Postmaster General without reference to Congress.

"There is no question," Mr. Hammell comments, "of the need for a parcel post service that it should not be permitted to engage in unnecessary and unfair competition in the field of private enterprise. If government competition is permitted in the field of transportation, which business field would be next? And where would it stop?"

"Unfair government competition with private enterprise can never be justified—let alone on the basis of damaging results to the taxpayer or to a substantial private enterprise industry and to the protection of private enterprise so that a relatively few business units may enjoy low operating costs."

Perham of West Paris was elected as the presiding officer and Federation business was discussed, with Merle Tenney, Federation Representative, reporting on Federation progress. WORTH REPEATING

"Government spending has got to be reduced and brought into balance with government income before any of us can really benefit. This is as simple as the axiom that two and two make four. Until this can be done, any tax reduction voted for the relief of taxpayers by vote-seeking demagogues would be purely nominal; would be 'relief' on paper only." —Leonard (Maine) Express.

"Whether money is listed as being provided by the Federal government or through other sources, it is money that is raised through taxation. It may be direct or it may be indirect taxation, but taxation is the source of the money. To secure money through Federal agencies may seem to some as having the nature of a gift, but it is still tax money." —Leonard (Maine) Express.

Antiga, Wis., Daily Journal: "Giving something familiar a new name tends either to commend it or to arouse new fears. The word 'automation' for instance, suggests a new class of machines—different from any which we have ever had before, and, according to U. S. Steel Chairman Benjamin F. Fairless, it 'conveys a vision of a wholly automatic factory where machines with super-brains will grind out products without any human payroll whatever.' Speaking before the annual dinner of the Greater Johnstown Chamber of Commerce he said 'There are no such factories and no such machines; nor will there ever be in any time or place.'"

Brownie Troop 5—We met with 9 present on Wednesday. We finished our blocks of oil cloth. We enjoyed refreshments of cookies brought by Betsy and milk and ice cream. We discussed plans for next meeting and are going to Block Print. —Darlene Morrill.

Patrol 4—At our meeting Wednesday afternoon we voted to sell cookies in the month of April. Hope called the other patrol leaders to see if they were interested in joining with us in this sale but they were not interested. So if you are hungry, please remember, we will be at your home soon with some cookies for you. Jean Waterhouse has invited us to hike to her house for a cook-out. We all enjoy hiking so are looking forward to Saturday.

The Pine Tree Patrol Unit B met Tuesday, March 15, at their leader's home. We froze home made ice cream. We formed a horseshoe and held the business meeting followed by a St. Patrick's party. Program as follows: The Meaning of St. Patrick's Day by Evelyn Sprague, St. Patrick Story by Nancy Cole, St. Patrick Song by Sharon York. Refreshments were served by Julia Brown, Bonnie Eames, Susan Boynton and Judy Currier. The Scouts were invited to visit Miss Eva Bean to listen to a talk and see pictures about birds. Sec. Judy Currier.

Brownie Troop No. 8 didn't have a regular meeting this week because there were a few who didn't have their drawing bags finished so those six came and we finished them. We also played records and sang songs.
